The Impression Produced by General Harrison's Family While at Washington.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, June 26. - In its society columns the Star has this: "Gen. Ben Harrison's family were here for the most part of the six years that General Harrison was in the United States Senate. They left behind them a host of warm personal friends. The immediate family consists of General and Mrs. Harrison, a daughter, Mrs. McKee, and a son who is also married and lives on a ranch in Montana. Mrs. Harrison is a leader in all good works in her own city of Indianapolis, and was active in charitable and pospitable works while here. She is a genial ostess. Mrs. Harrison's father and sister live this city. The former, Rev. Wm. H. Scott, holds a position in the Pension Office, and with his daughter, Mrs. Scott Lord, lives at the Strathmore Arms." The Wholesale Grocers' Convention. New York, June 26 .- When the session of the wholesale grocers was opened, this afternoon, Maj. W. J. Johnson, of Richmond, made the report of the result of the conference with the sugar refiners. All they asked was to obtain the agreement of all the sugar refiners. The speaker thought there would be no trouble. of the Frankin refinery. Delegate Samuel Stevenson, of Columbus, O., declared there was no fear of that refinery. Nothing definite was accomplished, and the matter was retained in the bands of a committee of eight. Delegate Wm. Edwards, of Cleveland resigned from the general committee, and R. Dymond, of Cincinnati, succeeded him. Delegate Wahlmer, of Syracuse, says he would like to hear what was considered a fair profit in sugar. He thought about 5 per cent. Delegate Spurr, of Boston, did not think it possible to charge 5 per cent. The matter of regulating prices and negotiating with refiners was left with the committee o eight. The convention then adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair.

There were present Mr. Foster, president, and Mr. Clarkson, chairman of the sub-executive committee of the league and members of the committee. It was decided that a meeting of the executive committee and a meeting of the sub-executive committee of the league should be called to meet in New York city, at No. 202 Fifth avenue, at 10 o'clock on Wednesday, July 11, and that the presidents of the various State leagues should be notified to meet with the league for conference. The committee officially requestall Republican clubs in the United States to call meetings and ratify the platform and the ticket, upon June 28, so that the work of the campaign may begin uniformly throughout the

He Does Not Approve All the Convention Methods, but Will Work for the Ticket.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, June 26 .- Senator Sherman was to-day asked what he thought of the makeup of the Chicago convention, and its conclusions. He replied that he did not know that it was proper for him to make any comments on that subject, inasmuch as his name had been presented before the convention, discussed and balloted upon, but that he was now a free American again, and that, viewed in that light, he could not see anything improper about his making some observations. He began by saying that the convection was a very marked and able body, and was the master of itself from organization to adjournment; that it was not easily stampeded, and proceeded with great deliberation from the beginning to the end. "I think the platform," said the Senator, "is the best statement of principles by political party that I ever read. It is clear, concise, and there is no evasion or avoidance in it It is an announcement of the object and aims of the Republican party. In comparison with the Democratic platform it stands in about as striking contrast as the acts of the Republicans for the last thirty years stand with those of the Democratic party. There are a few things about the convention that are worthy of comment. The exclusion of the regular delegation from Virginia was an act of injustice. Mahone and his delegates represent nine-tenths of the Republicans of Virginia, including more than thirty thousand confederate soldiers, in the white counties of hat State. They had gradually obtained con trol of the large majority of the white counties. which are now represented by several members of Congress, all but one of whom are friends of Mahone. If the convention had understood the real facts in Virginia, it would not have rejected the Mahone delegates. The quarrel between Wise and Mahone was very unfortunate. Both men are of high temper, of excellent character, and good Republicans. The convention met with another difficulty," continued Senator Sherman, "by being under the shadow of a candidacy of Mr. Blaine, which was not announced. He has great following in the Republican party, and would have been nominated without dissent. He would have conducted a campaign to reverse the election of Grover Cleveland. For reasons known to him he declined to be a candidate, yet his followers made him a candidate from the be ginning of the convention. This rejection of Mahone, every attempt to organize, and every ballot was affected by his supposed candidacy.

If he had been openly named as a candidate and taken his chances like the rest of us, it would have appeared that he could not have been nominated, not on account of opposition to him, but for prudential reasons. His followers insisted that every candidate should successencounter the field, expecting would fail to get the requisite majority of all the votes, so that no one would be left to object to the nomination of Blaine They were not willing to submit him to the test. The votes of his followers were, whether by intent or not, carefully distributed, some to vote for him on each ballot, and others to vote so as to prevent an agreement, and this created irritation and bad blood. In future conventions no votes should be counted except for persons openly and frankly announced as candidates. The theory of the nominations made was that the doubtful States were to furnish the candidates, and upon this theory the persons living in Republican States were discriminated against. The New York delegation practically dictated both nominations, and did not consider the vote of any person not a resident of these States. To this theory the convention unwillingly yielded. I sincerely hope that the election will show that it is the correct thing. Both Harrison and Morton are gentlemen of high character, good Republicans, and ought to be elected; but whether the theory of their selection was a correct one will be best judged by results. I have known Harrison intimately for six years. We sat sid by side, and I know him to be an able, consist ent and thorough Republican. Morton is also an able financier and a liberal Republican, and I believe, very popular in New York. It goes without saying that I will do all that I can to se cure their election. They have been fairly nominated, and are entitled to the support of every honorable man who participated in the convention and every Republican who is in favor of the principles set out in the platform. The real issue is not persons, but principles; pro tection against free trade; an honest vote against cheating and forgery. The campaign will un doubtedly be conducted upon high grounds."

IN SENATE AND HOUSE.

How the Defeated Candidates Carry Themselves-Jubilation of Indiana Members.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, June 26 -Very little interest was taken in the proceedings in Congress to-day; there was not a quorum in either house. the Senate the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was under consideration. but not more than twelve or fifteen Senators were in their seats a great part of the time. Mr. Sherman was among the to appear on the floor, and he was quickly followed by Mr. Allison General Hawley, making up the senatorial trio whose names were before the Chicago convention for the presidential nomination. Mr. Allison immediately went to his desk, took out the appropriation bill, which came from his commit tee, and devoted himself to his work during the day. Mr. Sherman busied himself with newspapers and received a great deal of attention from Senators and members of the House. Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin, who is an ardent friend of the Obican, came in early, and, drawing his chair up close to Mr. Sherman, leaned upon his hand and entered into long and earnest conversation. He explained how the thing was done in the convention. He contended that there was an almost universal desire to have a new man in the field, and that the delegates were demanding a candidate with whom they could make an augressive campaign. Sepator Sewfer would up his talk by telling a story, at the conclusion of which Mr. Sherman and himself laughed heartily. Then Congressman Campbell came in from the House and called Mr. Sherman out into marble room, where they had a long talk about private matters. General Hawley and General Henderson had their heads together for a long hour or two, discussing the work of the convention. Both were in excellent humor, and laughed over the disappointments of some men and the surprise of others. Senater Frye eat immediately in front of Mr. Allison, and during lulls in the debate on the pending bill they talked about the nominations. Senators Davis, of Minnesota: Mitchell and Dolph, of Oregon; Chandler and Blair; of New Hampshire; Edmunds, of Vermont, and Plumb, of Kansas, made up the Republican list present, besides Mr. Ingalls, the presiding officer. In the House there was a picturesque scene presented when the procceedings began this norning. All of the desks on the Republican side and surrounding the semi-circle immodiately in front of the Speaker, were covered with small flags, on which were printed in large letters, "Protection to American Industries." On the opposite side of the semi-circle the Democrats covered their desks with red bandannas. The Republican members from Indiana were the attraction during most of the day. Crowds gathered about the desks of Browne, General Hovey, Captain White and Mr. Chesdle, and congratulated them upon the success of their candidate, and asked all kinds of questions about General Harrison's standing in the State, his ability, his record and his private life. The Indianapolis Republicans are very proud of their candidate, and are proclaiming with great confidence that they are sure of success. They all say ex-Governor Albert G. Porter will be the nomines for Governor, and with probably one exception they say it will be tendered to him by acclamation. They picture in glowing colors the easy success the party will have in Indiana and New York with Harrison and Porter, the local candidates in their native State, and Levi P. Morton for Vice-president and Warner Miller for Governor in New York. General Browne expressed the opinion of his colleagues when he said this afternoon: "If you would hunt with dog and gon through ludisms and New York, you could not find a more nearly invincible combination than in Harrison and Porter and Morton and Miller.

HON, LEVI P. MORTON,

He Thinks the Harrison Nomination a Strong One, and that Victory Will Follow. New York, June 26 .- The Herald prints the following dispatch from Rhinebeck, N. Y .: When Harrison's nomination for President became an assured fact, a reporter interviewed Mr. L. P. Morton, the New York banker, whose nomination for second place on the ticket then seemed

"How do you regard Harrison's nomination!" queried the reporter. "I regard General Harrison's nomination as the strongest that could have been made by the national Republican convention. It will place

Indiana in the Republican column, and with the Republican party in New York united as it is to-day, I cannot for a moment doubt a Republican victory in November. Beyond this expression regarding the effect of the nomination of General Harrison, you must excuse me from any further response to your questions." At half-past 9 P. M. the news of Levi P. Morton's nomination for Vice-president was received here. Almost instantly the streets were filled with an enthusiastic erowd, and the boom of cannon and the rattle of fire-crackers resourded in every direction. "Levi P. Morton was nominated on the first ballot," was the cry, and it was caught up like magic. Flags were thrust out to hang in listless folds in the humid air, and a brass band composed of local talent raised such a racket that residents in Rondout, three miles away across the Hudson, heard and knew the cause thereof. The re-his nomination. That gentlemen was sitting on the spacious verands in the rear of the Huntngton mansion when the reporter mounted the broad steps leading to the entrance.

"Mr. Morton," said the reporter, "I may be the first to announce that you were nominated for Vice-president by the Republican convention in Chicago on the first ballot."

"Is that sof Isn't that pice?" said Mrs. Morton

"Is that sof Isn't that nice?" said Mrs. Morton, who was at his side in an instant. As he tore a telegram open, Mr. Morton's fingers trembled somewhat, but his face was impassive as ever. After reading the telegram, which added assurance to what the reporter had already told him, the banker took an easy chair and also asked the Herald reporter to sit down.

"May I ask if you will accept the nomination?"

"I certainly could not decline the nomination with which I have been honored by the representatives of the Republican party in convention assembled," was Mr. Morton's reply. At this moment prominent people from the vicinity began to flock in, and the nominee for Vice-precident and his charming wife were overwhelmed with congratulations till late in the evening.

GENERAL SHERMAN.

He Indorses the Nominations in His Usual Frank and Unqualified Manner. New York, June 26.-Gen. William T. Sher man said last night at the Fifth-avenue Hotel: "I think there could not be a more powerful ticket than Harrison and Morton. I think that every man who fought for the preservation of this government should vote for these men. They are both strong Union men; one is a soldier and the other a statesman, both well tried in their country's service. Harrison, I think, will be as strong as Blaine would have been. Of course, I would rather my brother John had got it, but the Republican party should be the judge and select its own standard-bearen. It is now the duty of every true citizen to stand by these men who were true to the country when she was in danger. There has never been a true Union man to represent this country in foreign lands under this administration, and it is time for a change. I believe Cleveland has done the best he could. I have no fault to find with his administration. My feelings, though, carry me back to the war. I would not keep up sectional differences. Every Southern man has the same rights that we have. But would have starved us during the war. They are what I call the Copperheads. Cleve is seventeen years younger than I. He should have shouldered musket and gone to the front Everybody capable of carrying a gun should have offered his services; then the war would not have lasted se long as it did. At Vicksburg and Gettysburg we were short-handed, and if these men who hung in the rear had gone to the front the war would have been over a year sooner than it was. The candidates named now are wonderfully good. Harrison is a man of great character, good habits and lineage. He is good everyway. and a fit and proper person to go to the White House. Now it is a fair and square race between the two parties."

Firing of guns and other evidences of approval continued until a late hou impromptu meeting of the Harri largest meetings ever held in the city, and the enthusiasm was unbounded. One solitary individual, an Indianapolis man, purchased a lot of tar-barre's, fired the pyramid and made the welkin ring with shouts for Harrison. He fairly made Rome howl. He sacrificed a Democratic plug hat upon the pyre, and made more noise and evinced more enthusiasm than a whole delegation of Cleveland Democrats.

Corypon, June 26. - The news of the nomina tion of General Harrison was received at this place about 1:30 o'clock. Quite a crowd was waiting at the telephone office for news. When the news of the nomination was received a loud buzza rent the air. The Republican, which was a zealous supporter of Judge Gresham, believing in giving the nominee a warm sop port, at once hung out its flag.
Dozens of people at once put on Harrison badges. While the people in Harrison ounty preferred Judge Gresham, they are pleased at General Harrison's nomination, and the Republicans here will give him an enthusiastic support. When Cleveland and Thurman were nominated no one was at the telephone office to receive the news, not a shout went up, not a flag was raised, and not a badge was put on over their nomination. BROWNSTOWN, June 26.-Brownstown is in a blaze of excitement over the news from Chicago of the nomination of Gen. Ben Harrison for President. One hundred guns were fired, and the Republicans paraded the streets with bands of music, banners and flags, and the public square was alight with bonfires and Chinese lanterns. Men, women and children, and even Democrats, cheered for Indiana's favorite. General Harrison will make a clean sweep of all the Union soldiers in Jackson county next November. BEGINNING THE DAY. First Evidences of a Renewal of Enthusia

Though the feeling of gratification over the result of the Chicago convention was not wanting yesterday in that noisy demonstration which characterized the first reception of the news in this city, there were hundreds of other evidence on every hand of deep and enthusiastic feeling on the part of citizens, and warm and carnet expressions of satisfaction were exchanged be tween the thousands who began to congregat upon the street at an early hour. With the early morning citizens continued the work of decorating their business houses and residences. and by noon the city was arrayed is full holiday attire, thousands of yards of bunting being arranged in graceful festeens about the windows, portienes and arches, while flags waved from every projection and lithographs of the nominees were exhibited from the windows. The residences situated near that of General Harrison were beautifully decorated and the occupants appeared to be especial desirous of showing their appreciation of the distinguished honor that had come to theis friend and neighbor, a compliment earned by many years of friendly intercourse and bestowed in such a manner as to leave no doubt that the was born of deep, disinterested and friendly re-

While surrounded by these timely evidences of his neighbors' esteem, the residence of the General presented its every-day appearance and from this fact alone the visitors could easily distinguish the house of the presidential nomi nee from those of his rejoiding friends. The absence of very noisy demonstration de ing the morring and afternoon house opportunity for the fallest exhibition of earnest, heart-felt enthuciasm which has the dominant characteristic of our civizens sin the first potification of the result at Chicago and which could not find vent in the tooting of tin born or in the chorns of sheers which rent the air upon every street in the city Meaday afternoon and evening. There was a deeper feeling than these things indicated and found full expression yesterday in the action of citizens. On Monday everyone was on the move going hither and thither and proclaiming the "glad tidings" to every one he met. Yesterde little groups of citizens gathered here and then upon the streets, and discussed the nomination calmly and dispassionately. Every eye was life with a brighter light, every hand was clasped with a firmer grasp, and every word uttered on the subject was spoken in a deeper tone of carm estness. On every hand was seen the evidence of that deep, long-lived enthusiasm that shall be the inspiration of the people during the campaign, and shall be prolific in its results to the man whose genius gave it birth. Indianapolis has been the scene of several large demonstrations when her citizens have received marks of distinguished honor, but never has the current of enthusiasm been so deep as on this occasion. Those who have witness it agree that the city has surpassed herself in that generous, uninterrupted flow of onthesi tion of General Harrison by his party for the highest office within the gift of the people.

STREAMERS AND BUNTING. the Business Men Mantfested Their Gratification.

The merchants, almost without exception yesterday, adorned their business houses. Three out of every four buildings in the business portion of the city, had more or less decoration Some of them presented almost a solid front of flags and bunting, with lithographs of Harrison in every window, while others observed the occasion merely by hanging out flags, and pick ures of the candidate. It was a beautiful sight to look up or down any of the principal streets, and the display made a decided impression on the many strangers who visited the city doring the day and night. Perhaps the most elaborat decoration was along Meridian street, from Washington to the depot. Several magnificier large flags hung over the street, upon lines sus pended from the buildings on either side, while the fronts of the large wholesale houses were bedecked with gorgeous streamers, pictures and flags of all sizes and shapes. It was a beauti ful display creditable alike to the merchants, themselves and city. Along Washington street the dis play was almost equally brilliant. The great width of this street made it imprasticable te suspend flags across the street, and the decorations were confined to the stores. Promis among these was the handcome building of L. S. Ayres & Co., over whose front drooped in mease folds of brilliant colored bunting, which could be seen equares away. Next door to it was Albert Gall's, half conceased by a gigantic flag, suspended from the windows of the top floor. H. P. Wasson & Co.'s store, across the street, also had a big flag across its front. The Indianapolis News building was adorned with a bandsome banner, upon which was bun picture of Gen. Harrison, while bunting wi trailed over the front of the building. The Pennsylvania ticket-office, at the corner Washington and Illicois, was almost e from view behind flags, streamers and bus of the national colors, the windows bedraped with fuem. Eastman, Schlei & Lee, upon the same street, ha decorated profusely, as had Bowen & Merrill H. H. Lee, Charles F. Mover & Co., Charles Mayer & Co., the Model, the Areade Cit Company, Ward Bros., the Alliester shee ster Along Meridian street there were not a half dozen stores between Washington and the depot which were without decorations. The front of Fahnley & McCres bore two large flags and that of Conduitt & Son one very large bas aer. Gordon, Kurtz & Co. was decorated with pied the middle. Tay small flags and bunting, and Hopley
